In residency, psychiatrists spend a lot of time thinking about formulations of our patients. What diagnoses does this person have? What are the contributing factors to how this person has arrived at the point they are at? And what should our approach to treatment be? These questions, and more, come to guide our clinical practice. Our speakers will present an array of perspectives answering considerations in our approach to patient care. We will have an experienced medical malpractice attorney discussing liability for acts of others, dangerous patients, and forensics. We will then hear from a trauma-focused psychiatrist on disorganized attachment. A longtime correctional psychiatrist will present, drawing from his career experience. Finally, we will hear from an addiction psychiatrist regarding management of alcohol withdrawal. Our hope is that you will come away with some new lenses to think about the work you are doing on a daily basis.
